Karen West,
The latest information from Constitutional Law on Coursera.

Dear Karen West,

Welcome to Constitutional Law on Coursera! The next twelve weeks promise to be enjoyable, challenging, and engaging. So here's how you get started:

1. If you haven't already done so, please watch the "Introduction to the course" lecture in the Video Lectures section.
2. Please review the Syllabus and Grading Policies. The Syllabus is especially important to review because it explains the course format and provides the dates when lectures and assignments will be released.
3. Learn about your instructors on the Meet the Instructors page. Make sure to view the video introductions from each of the three Teaching Assistants: Lauren Biksacky, Danny Townsend, and Daniel Herz-Roiphe.
4. Please visit the "Introduce Yourself" message forum to tell us who you are, where you're from, and why you decided to enroll in this course.
5. As you read in the Syllabus, the structure of this course follows two of Professor Amar's books on the American Constitution. While neither books is required for the course, you may enjoy reading along as the course develops. Please visit the Suggested Readings page to learn more about the two books.
6. Please visit the "Bonus Materials" page to learn about the additional content we plan to provide every Wednesday and Friday.
7. Please complete the "Pre-Course Survey" located under the Surveys tab.
8. Okay, now it's time to get started with course content for the first week. Return to the Video Lectures section and watch the first lectures for this week. Two more videos will be released on Wednesday.

Best,
Akhil Reed Amar
Sterling Professor of Law and Political Science at Yale University
